

GI FACILITATION: AN IMPORTANT OUTCOME OF THE PROJECT INTERVENTION WITH PRO-POOR INITIATIVES.

The globalisation has brought about enormous challenges to the trade and industry; and the worst sufferers are the producers of unique textile products who loose their markets due to large-scale infringement of the product. The promulgation of Geographical Indication (GI) Act, 1999 by Government of India has created an avenue for protection of these unique products of the country. The Act stipulates protection of the market of the producers and safeguards the interests of the consumers of these unique products through registration and taking infringement action against the infringers. It is believed, that the IPR Protection of unique textiles products of the country with a predetermined market linkage strategy would help in brand building of the product, providing market linkages, generating more employment opportunities and enhanced income to the stakeholders besides bringing about regional specialisation.

INTERVENTION OF TEXTILES COMMITTEE:

In order to protect these unique products, the Textiles Committee has been spearheading a nationwide campaign in the country through facilitating GI registration of potential products and technical knowledge transfers. As a part of project implementation on GI, a five pronged approach has been adopted. The approaches are

- ❶ organising nationwide workshop for creation of awareness.
- ❷ organising study for identifying potential textile products for IPR protection.
- ❸ preparation of study & documentation report of selected products.
- ❹ facilitating GI registration of the products.
- ❺ quantifying the Post-GI benefits through undertaking effect studies

Besides the Committee is disseminating the trade related information for capacity building. As a part of the endeavour, the Committee has also facilitated GI registration for products like Lucknow Chikan Craft, Banaras Saree & Brocades of Uttar Pradesh, Khandua Saree & Fabrics, Pipli Applique of Orissa, Bandhani and Surat Zari of Gujarat, Paithani Saree of Maharashtra, Bhagalpur Silk of Bihar, Guledgudda Fabrics of Karnataka etc. The state governments of Kerala and Uttar Pradesh have also taken the support of Textiles Committee for GI registration of some of their unique products.

Shri Jagdish Narain Rai, Hon'ble Minister (Textiles & Sericulture) Government of Uttar Pradesh inaugurated the conference.

The broad objectives of the conference are:

- Taking the issues relating to GI to researchers, policy makers, state governments, civil society organisations, centre of excellence for further research and dissemination
- Creating a platform for the researchers and policy makers for regular interaction and carrying forward the research for betterment of stakeholders.
- Taking the Geographical Indication to a logical end for the sake of stakeholders.
- Sensitising the state government for better and pro-active implementation of project related activities.
- Disseminating the research and development, achievements of the project activities on GI with stakeholders.
- Sharing the concerns and impediments arised in the process of project implementation.

The theme of the conference is to showcase the different research and development activities taken up by UNCTAD, Textiles Committee and Tier – II Partners of the project on Geographical Indications.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE CONFERENCE:

- The conference was able to streamline the much needed debate among the researchers on the various issues relating to pre and post GI registration phases of the products and how the IPR protection could be converted into opportunities in terms of increase in income and employment for the producer's community. The experts shared different case studies of registered products and how the registration has brought about overall well being for the producers. The Textiles Committee shared the key findings of the study Pochampally Ikat: A Comparative Market Analysis of Pre & Post Registration Periods under Geographical Indication Act and shared with the delegates about the rise in income employment and other important parameters of the products in the post registered period
- The conference was also acted as a training platform for the officers of Textiles Committee and Tier-II Partners particularly on issues relating to Intellectual Property Rights and Geographical Indications.
- Almost all state governments were sensitised about the possible implications of IPR Protection of unique products through GI.
- The feedbacks of stakeholders were collected on the issue for further dissemination and deliberation.
